Jon Altman is a social scientist and was inaugural director of the Centre for Aboriginal Economic Policy Research at the Australian National University, 1990–2010. He is currently an ARC Australian Professorial Fellow at CAEPR researching the Indigenous ‘hybrid’ economy.

Bruce Chapman is Professor in Crawford School of Economics and Government at the ANU. He is a labour and education economist with around 180 published papers and has a particular interest in the role of government as a risk manager.

Suzette Fox is currently completing PhD study with the University of Queensland. Her interest in young people and work stems from personal and professional social-work practice in the areas of Health, Mental Health and Employment Assistance programs.

Myra Hamilton is a Research Associate at the Social Policy Research Centre at the University of New South Wales. She recently completed a PhD at the University of Sydney on retirement incomes policy in Australia and Britain.

Melinda Hinkson teaches social anthropology and is convener of the Visual Culture Research program in the Research School of Humanities and the Arts, the Australian National University. Among her recent co-edited books are An Appreciation of Difference and Coercive Reconciliation.

Professor Brian Howe is a Professorial Associate in the Centre for Public Policy at the University of Melbourne. He was Deputy Prime Minister of Australia (1991–95), a member of the Federal Cabinet (1984–96) and held a range of Ministerial portfolios in the fields of Defence, Social Security, Health, Housing and Community Services.

Howard Karger is Professor and Head of the School of Social Work and Human Services, University of Queensland. He is an internationally recognised scholar in social welfare policy and has published extensively in a wide range of international journals.

Catriona Mackenzie is Professor of Philosophy at Macquarie University, Sydney. She has published widely in ethics, applied ethics, feminist philosophy and moral psychology. She was awarded the 2007 Eureka Prize for Research in Ethics for her work on autonomy and moral imagination.

Professor Catherine McDonald is Discipline Head of Human Services at the School of Global Studies, Social Science and Planning, RMIT University. Catherine has taught and researched in social work, social policy and the human services for over twenty years.

Peter McDonald is Professor of Demography and Director of the Australian Demographic and Social Research Institute at the Australian National University. He is President of the International Union for the Scientific Study of Population for the years 2010–2013.

Dr Greg Marston is Senior Lecturer in Social Policy and Deputy Head of the School of Social Work and Human Services at the University of Queensland. His research interests focus on the intersection of welfare state restructuring, policy implementation and social theory.

Jeremy Moss is Director of the Social Justice Initiative at the University of Melbourne. His main research interests are in egalitarian discussions of key topics in political philosophy including equality, climate justice and political obligation. Much of his recent research has been focused on developing an account of why equality is valuable. He has published numerous articles on these topics and won several awards for his work including the Eureka Prize for Research in Ethics and the Australasian Association for Philosophy Media Prize.

John Murphy is Associate Professor of Historical Studies and Associate Dean (Research) at the Faculty of Arts at the University of Melbourne. He has published widely on Australian social and political history, including the Vietnam War, the 1950s, and aspects of social policy.

Professor Barbara Pocock is Director of the Centre for Work + Life at the University of South Australia. Barbara has been researching work, employment and industrial relations since 1981.

John Quiggin is an Australian Research Council Federation Fellow in Economics and Political Science at the University of Queensland. He is also a Fellow of the Australian Social Science Academy, the American Agricultural Economics Association, and the Australian Institute of Company Directors and a Distinguished Fellow of the Australian Agricultural and Resource Economics Society. Professor Quiggin is prominent both as a research economist and as a commentator on Australian economic policy.

Leesa Wheelahan is an associate professor at the LH Martin Institute for Higher Education Leadership and Management at the University of Melbourne. Her book, Why Knowledge Matters in Curriculum: A Social Realist Argument, is published by Routledge.
