THE UNKNOWN NATION Australia After Empire

By James Curran and Stuart Ward

'Fresh, provocative and full of insights'
Paul Kelly

THE UNKNOWN NATION IS AN ILLUMINATING HISTORY OF AUSTRALIA'S 'SEARCH' FOR NATIONAL IDENTITY.

James Curran and Stuart Ward explore how the receding ties of empire—or 'Britishness'—posed an unprecedented dilemma for Australians in the 1960s and 1970s.

With the sudden disappearance of the coordinates of the British world, Australians were cast into the realm of the unknown. The task of remodelling the national image touched every aspect of Australian life where identifiably British ideas, habits and symbols—from foreign relations to the national anthem—had grown obsolete. But how to celebrate Australia's past achievements and future aspirations became a source of public controversy as community leaders struggled to find the appropriate language and rhetoric to invoke a new era.

The Unknown Nation unravels the origins, influence and implications of our hesitant coming of age.

James Curran is a Senior Lecturer in History at the University of Sydney. He is the author of The Power of Speech: Australian Prime Ministers Defining the National Image (2004) and a former analyst at the Office of National Assessments. In 2010 he is the Fulbright Professional Scholar in Australia-US Alliance Studies at Georgetown University, Washington, DC.

Stuart Ward is Associate Professor at the University of Copenhagen. He is the author of Australia and the British Embrace: The Demise of the Imperial Ideal (2001) and editor of Australia's Empire (with Deryck M Schreuder, 2008). In 2008–09 he was Keith Cameron Chair of Australian History, University College Dublin.
